I consider creativity the most important aspect a designer can have. I read lots about the topic, I stay curious and explore topics I'm interested on to find inspiration, or opportunities.

I'm a storytelling enthusiast and music geek that likes to crack some dad jokes, practice natural movement, and watch manga.

Hola! Hi! Hej! Mbollo!

My name is Brian Oko and I'm 3rd culture kid, which means I was born in a place (Barcelona), different from the culture that my parents are from (Equatorial Guinea).

If you like manga comics, animation, talking and making music, basketball or travelling as a form of self-discovery or to get inspired, we'll probably get along.

I have a background as an Industrial Design Engineer and Interaction Design. I've also attended courses in storytelling, improv and theatre.

During my year off from my Interaction Design MA, I interned at Smart Design in San Francisco, Designit in Munich and Electrolux Stockholm.

I had the chance to work with great brands and business such as Cisco, Barclays, Franke, BVVA, Bank of Ireland, Bungee, The AA, Visa.

What I enjoy about the design process, is the UX Strategy; planning how to go about shaping a product and turning ideas into testable concepts.

My dream is to help more people to create meaningful products and services while working with diverse creative and assertive people.
